DETAILED ACTION

1. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

2. The submitted IDS has been considered. A copy of applicant-submitted Form PTO1449 is enclosed.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over any one of the references to Yamashita et al(US6547695) or Chung et al(US6591174) or Porter(US6446774) or Buchanan et al(US6715597) or under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Lentz et al(US5216606).

Applicants set forth numerous variations of controlling and estimating/calculating/measuring the temperature or heat rate of a friction device such as single-plate clutches, multi-plate clutches, cone clutches and band brakes. There are a myriad of possibilities disclosed and claimed which may or may not involve slip speed, torque, thermal energy, heat or temperature art or variations, current flow, pumps, on/off valves, variable opening valves, sump temperature signals, etc., i.e., there appears to be no particular significant critical parameter sensed, estimated and/or calculated with respect to the controller or control unit and the parameters involved.

As broadly recited, heat or temperature state of a friction device is calculated and the flow of fluid is controlled to cool a friction device. Note that an artisan recognizes that the cooling of heated friction devices is conventional and desirable in order to extend the useful life of the friction device and to promote its effective operation.

Each one of the references discloses the claimed structure. Assuming for the sake of argument that the applied references lacks a particular variation disclosed such as calculating temperature or heat as opposed to calculating temperature or heat rate with another parameter such as slip speed or torque, it would have been within the level of one skilled in the art to cool a friction device in any one of the references through the artisan's perception of which parameter such as speed, slip, temperature should best be calculated and transmitted to a controller to control and cool the friction device or devices based upon temperature or heat or some parameter directly or indirectly related thereto.
